

Dear Educators,

We are here to help you however we can during this challenging time. As many of you shift to remote learning practices, our team can assist you with setting up a free digital classroom group, where you can upload curricula, facilitate student writing and peer review, follow your students' progress and portfolios, and access our library of writing prompts, peer review rubrics, resources, and competitions across genres. During this time, you will have access to more writing prompts than ever before, as well as lesson plans (released on the third Thursday of every month to educator newsletter subscribers) tailored specifically to online learning contexts.

To support the social-emotional wellness of young writers during this time, Write the World has also launched the "In This Together" writing group, a dedicated writing space for 13 to 18 year olds exploring themes of unity, solidarity, and resilience. Every Wednesday, we will feature new writing created by members of this group. And we are also running our Writers' Rooms, 6-week groups dedicated to a genre or element of craft, open to all Write the World student members.

As always, we encourage you to reach out to us at any time with questions or comments. Please contact Teaching & Learning Coordinator Brittany Collins at brittany@writetheworld.com to learn more about our efforts during this time, how you can integrate WtW into your remote teaching, or to share suggestions for what you'd like to see on WtW.

The Write the World Team